using nvm

you need an account, and you need to be 16 or older. the account exists so releases can be limited — it is never shown on a card.

what you write

kept nvm's are yours and private. releasing one publishes the card anonymously: you cannot pull it back, and you remain responsible for what it says.

there is no tolerance for abusive content do not release anything that identifies a real person, harasses anyone, threatens anyone, or is unlawful.

cards carrying an email address, a phone number, a link or a handle are refused before they can go out. anyone can report a card, and enough reports pull it from the felt while a person reviews it. we may remove any card and close any account that breaks this.

blocking

you can block whoever wrote a card. their cards stop reaching you. you are never told who they are, and they are never told either.

nvm+

an optional subscription, billed by apple. it lifts the daily release limit and unlocks styles, story export and voice.

it does not buy placement in today or this week. those are chosen from what people actually sent, and no amount of money changes them — there is deliberately no column in our database that could be sold.

subscriptions renew until cancelled; cancel in your apple account settings. nothing in your vault is withheld if you stop paying.

ending it

delete your account from settings whenever you like. we may close an account that breaks these terms.

no warranty

nvm is provided as it is. we are not liable for what you write, or for anything that follows from sending — or not sending — a message.
